Why Obtain Supplements from a Healthcare Professional?

Vital Nutrients believes that every patient should see their healthcare professional prior to taking nutritional supplements. The healthcare professional can prescribe and direct the proper use of nutritional supplements while considering patient history, prescription medications, test results, and emotional and physical wellness of each patient. Healthcare professionals prescribe physician grade and optimum strength products that are made in the United States, are fully tested, safe and clinically effective.

We understand that a healthcare professional's success and credibility depend on the clinical effectiveness of their treatment program. A practitioner using nutritional supplements as part of the treatment protocol means that clinical success with patients depends on the quality, efficacy, purity, and consistency of the products prescribed.

Vital Nutrients has a professional medical team to develop formulations of products using worldwide research. The research is based upon and consists of published human and/or animal-based studies. Our medical team works diligently to ensure that the raw materials chosen for our formulations work synergistically to produce the best clinical outcome based upon medical research. We make certain that our products contain true therapeutic doses and are made with the most beneficial, pure and active materials.

The following are benefits that result from purchasing vitamins and supplements from nutritionists and health professionals offices according to the Foundation for the Advancement of Innovation in Medicine (FAIM):

- ◆ Improved patient compliance with prescribed treatment regimens, easier monitoring of treatment plans, and consequently, improved outcome.
 - ◆ Quality control is facilitated by the practitioner, ability to order supplements made to specifications re: content, bioavailability, potency low allergen- city, and compliance with GMP manufacturing standards.
 - ◆ Nutritionists trained in the therapeutic use of nutrition and botanicals offer an expertise that is not available from pharmacists, health food stores, or other product providers. The public is often better served by one point of service which is know to enhance convenience and lower cost.
 - ◆ Supplement sales subsidize other office services, such as counseling services and educational materials, thus allowing lower overall service fees for all patients.
 - ◆ New Jersey and Ohio are the only two states that restrictively regulates the sale of supplements by health care providers. Surveys indicate that patients have and do go outside the professional health care community for assistance with supplements when they have no other choice.
 - ◆ Don't assume that supplements from health professionals cost more. Comparison shop here as you would anywhere.
